

THE HISTORY OF THE
REPUBLIC OF THE UNITED STATES
OF AMERICA
FROM 1776 TO 1876

It is a well known fact that the history of the United States is a history of progress. From the first settlement of the continent by the Pilgrims in 1620, to the present day, the people of this country have been constantly improving their condition. They have increased in number, they have extended their territory, they have improved their agriculture, their commerce, and their arts. They have also improved their moral and political condition. They have learned to live in peace and harmony with each other, and with the world. They have learned to love liberty, and to defend it against all enemies. They have learned to respect the rights of others, and to exercise their own rights wisely. They have learned to be true to their principles, and to stand up for their principles in the face of all opposition. They have learned to be brave, and to sacrifice for their country. They have learned to be patient, and to wait for their rights. They have learned to be kind, and to love their neighbors. They have learned to be honest, and to tell the truth. They have learned to be just, and to do what is right. They have learned to be good, and to live a virtuous life. They have learned to be happy, and to enjoy the fruits of their labor. They have learned to be free, and to live under a free government. They have learned to be citizens, and to take part in the government of their country. They have learned to be men, and to stand up for their principles. They have learned to be Americans, and to love their country. They have learned to be brave, and to sacrifice for their country. They have learned to be patient, and to wait for their rights. They have learned to be kind, and to love their neighbors. They have learned to be honest, and to tell the truth. They have learned to be just, and to do what is right. They have learned to be good, and to live a virtuous life. They have learned to be happy, and to enjoy the fruits of their labor. They have learned to be free, and to live under a free government. They have learned to be citizens, and to take part in the government of their country. They have learned to be men, and to stand up for their principles. They have learned to be Americans, and to love their country.
