

London, 10th Nov. 1914. (10th Nov. 1914.)

My dear Mr. Lloyd George

I have just received your letter of the 9th inst. and am glad to hear that you are so much interested in the question of the future of the Empire. I am sure that you will find the following suggestions of interest.

1. The first suggestion is that the Empire should be divided into three main parts, each of which should be governed by a separate body.

2. The second suggestion is that the Empire should be divided into three main parts, each of which should be governed by a separate body.

3. The third suggestion is that the Empire should be divided into three main parts, each of which should be governed by a separate body.

4. The fourth suggestion is that the Empire should be divided into three main parts, each of which should be governed by a separate body.

5. The fifth suggestion is that the Empire should be divided into three main parts, each of which should be governed by a separate body.

6. The sixth suggestion is that the Empire should be divided into three main parts, each of which should be governed by a separate body.

7. The seventh suggestion is that the Empire should be divided into three main parts, each of which should be governed by a separate body.
