

1900-1901
The first year of the new century was a year of great change and progress in many ways.
The world was beginning to wake up to the possibilities of a new era of peace and cooperation. The great powers were beginning to realize that they could no longer afford to engage in a costly and destructive war. The people of the world were beginning to demand a more just and equitable system of government.
The first year of the new century was a year of great hope and optimism. It was a year when the people of the world were beginning to see the possibility of a better future. It was a year when the great powers were beginning to realize that they could no longer afford to engage in a costly and destructive war.
The first year of the new
century was a year of great change and progress in many ways. The world was beginning to wake up to the possibilities of a new era of peace and
cooperation. The great powers
were beginning to realize that
they could no longer afford to
engage in a costly and
destructive war. The people of the world were beginning to
demand a more just and
equitable system of government.
The first year of the new
century was a year of great
hope and optimism. It was a
year when the people of the
world were beginning to see
the possibility of a better future. It was a year when
the great powers were beginning
to realize that they could no longer afford to engage in a
costly and destructive war.