WARSAW THEMEEKLY Editorial and Business Offices Mokotowska 12/4, Warsaw, Poland, Telephone 884-30. Subscription rates — zl. 3.50 quarterly, zl. 13.00 yearly Foreign 4/- or $1. quarterly, 15/- or $3.75 yearly. Sole member for Poland of the North American Newspaper Alliance P. K. O. 29898.

FRIDAY

JULY 12

1935

SOUTH AFRICAN LETTER

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Johannesburg, June 28, 1935.

Important statements have been Important statements have been made within the last few days by members of the Union Cabinet with regard to the Government's encouragement of the work of investigating the mineral resources of this country, and in which they emphasised the enormous potential value of these resources.

resources.

General Smuts, the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Justice, speaking at the annual dinner of the Chemical, Metallurgical and Mining Society here, the other night, raised the question whether the governments of this country in the past had really done justice to the enormous mineral deposits which are the chief assets of this country. While South Africa was a secondrate and perhans a third-rate rate and perhaps a third-rate agricultural country, there was no doubt at all in the minds of those no doubt at all in the minds of those that knew that as a mineral country it shood first and foremost in the world. "If we make use of the great opportunity we have in this direction," added General Smuts, "if we concentrate on the mineral developments of this country, there is no reason why we should not see a development bere such as very few of us have ever dreamed of."

were dreamed of."

Mr. Oswald Pirow, the Minister for Railways and Defence, addressing the Witwatersrand General Council of the United Party, dealt with the government policy with regard to the creation of additional markets for farmers in the Union, and said: "The time has now come when we must tackle the serious development of has now come when we must tackle the serious development of our base metal industries, which afford such markets. The possibilities of our coal, our chrome, our asbestos and our manganese must be fully exploited. We do not realize what immense assets they represent. It is estimated that the gold still to be taken out of our mines is worth £1,500,000,000; the value of the gold already extracted is £1,000,000,000. If you add these two figures together, our base metal resources are still worth a good deal more. Markets for our base metals resources are still worth a good deal more. Markets for our base metals, resources are still worth a good deal more. Markets for our base metals, however, are metal resources are still worth a good deal more. Markets for our base metals, however, are reviving. We must see to it that the difficulties with which our base metal industries have to contend in parts of the country not readily accessible are fully examined, in order to assist them to develon. Their canacity for to develop. Their capacity for development is much bigger than we dream of."

we dream of."

These declarations are being welcomed as marking a new outlook in the union towards the encouragement of the development of the country's base minerals. An aspect of great importance is that these minerals are widely distributed and not convided to the country, as has been the case, broadly speaking, with gold, and therefore their successful exploitation would establish local mar-kets for farmers in many parts of the country.

PRESENTATION OF FARM HOUSE TO PREMIER SLAWEK BY PEASANTS FROM KRAKÓW DISTRICT IN APPRECIATION AND ADMIRATION OF HIS SERVICE TO THE STATE.

A Record Gold Production

A Record Gold Production

The May figures of the gold production in the Transvaal establish a new record for the gold industry in value, the total being £6,503,484, against the previous highest of £6,40,856 in March. This May declaration was on the basis of 142/- an onnee compared with 146/- in March, but owing to the longer working month in May the production totalled $16,035 fine ounces against $82,203 fine ounces in March. The May production in ounces is the highest since August, 1933. Only three times has production exceeded 900,000 ounces since August, 1933,—in September and October of that year, and in January, 1934. The Witwatersrand production in May totalled $97,184 ounces of a value of £6,370,047 on increase of 44,025 ounces and in value £269,920 compared with Apřil; whilst districts in the Transvaal outside the Witwatersrand showed an increase of 2,054 ounces and in value, £13,753.

—Percy Cowan.

Subscribers are reminded that it is time to renew their subscriptions for the third quarter.

........

THE CENTRAL EUROPEAN SITUATION

By Gladys Baker

According to Nicholas Titulescu, Rumania's Minister of Foreign Affairs and President of the Little Entente, all major difficulties which threatened to cancel the Danubian Conference have been ironed out and the council will be called at an early date.

be called at an early date.

He said: "The Little Entente is ready to join the Danubian Pact. It will work with France, Italy and the Balkan Entente in order to guarantee the independence of Austria. "I know of no other alliance." he continued. "which would be more successful in maintaining the general peace. Only a few minor points of preliminary agreement between the nations remain to be settled and it is left only for Mussolini to fix a definite date."

He indicated that since the

He indicated that since the objective of the Pact was also advantageous to Italy it was not likely there would be further postponement.

what would be the Asked Asked what would be the result if the Danubian Conference should fail, he replied with emphatic implication: 'It is im-possible that the Danubian Conference will fail. An inde-

INTERVIEW WITH M. TITULESCU

Bucharest, June 1935 pendent Austrian state is essential to the tranquillity and security of Europe."

"What other measures can be taken to prevent war?" he was asked. M. Titulescu M. Titulescu was thoughtful. He shifted his great ungainly frame to the edge of the armchair and the dark eyes narrowed: "To prevent war," he said, "each country must come out openly with the unequivocal statement that she will throw her whole weight and power against an aggressor. Nations will have to realise that it is easier and cheaper to make such a frank statement than it is to make war." make war."

make war."

He expressed grave concern over the rate at which the whole of Europe is re-arming.

"The armament race," he said, "is ultimately more dangerous than would be the consequences if an immediate and decisive ultimatum were delivered to those countries setting the pace."

M. Titulescu is one of the most dynamic influences in the political set-up of central Europe and the Balkans. Consistently he (Continued on page 5 col. 3)

(Continued on page 5 col. 3)

LONDON LETTER

By Gregory Macdonald

Anyone who is watching national and international affairs at all closely must agree that the world is moving into a new order of policies, and that in the past few months—more especially since the French politico-financial crisis—there has been a striking "atmospheric" change. Examples multiply from every part of the world. What amounts to a single monetary system covers Canada. Anyone who is world. What amounts to a single monetary system covers Canada, the United States and Mexico. Since the failure of the attack on the franc, the gold bloc has been nearer to the dollar area. The exchanges are quiet with a check imposed both in England and in France upon forward dealings in gold, and while the French Government declines to reveal its future policy, it shows no great activity in carrying out measures for deflation.

measures for deflation.

The waiting game of the French Government is here not entirely in contrast with Italy's warlike activities, which have the important effect of forcing an expansion of the home market and a rise of internal prices. The same consequence holds good of the Eastern military movements, for on the one hand the Japanese feudalists are increasing expenditure while on the other hand the Chinese Government has taken over control of the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications, with the intention of carrying out its own independent financing against the warnings of the against the warnings of Dankers.

All these changes are being noted in London, where also the situation is altering rapidly. The continuance of stable prices over a number of years has brought money to an unprecedented cheapness. The banks have difficulty in finding credit worthy borrowers hig firms are naving. difficulty in finding redit worthy borrowers, big firms are paying back their loans and debentures, and few openings occur for re-investment of the money. Considerable attention is being paid to new issues and to Corporation to new issues and to Corporation Loans, but even here the Glasgow Corporation created an ominous precedent by refusing the assistance of the Bank of England and carrying out its own conversion loan on local mortgages, with the result that the operation cost £7,1000 instead of £6,2000; in comparison with the terms offered by the Bank of England there will be an aggregate saving to the corporation of £7,1500,000 over the period of the loan. The new era of internal expansion is therefore seen to begin in an experimental spirit. A growth of this spirit must be expected, for the Government is definitely turning over to public definitely turning over to public works. Even the Bank of England — since it threw the bullion brokers overboard — is not what

(Continued on page 2 col. 2)

LETTER

It is evident, even to a casual observer, that Poland, as pre-eminently an agricultural country, constitutes a natural economic complement to a well industrial-ised country like Germany. Despite ised country liketermany, bespi-the long drawn economic strife that had been going on between Poland and Germany for almost nine years (until the end of 1933) Germany still occupies a leading rôle in Polish foreign trade, taking second place in Polish role in Polish foreign trade, taking second place in Polish exports, in 1934, with 161,000,000 zlotys, or 16.6% and a similar place in Polish imports, with 109,000,000 zlotys, or 13.6%.

Thus far the commercial relations between the transparent to the commercial relations are commercial relations to the commercia tions between the two countries tions between the two countries have been based on a temporary agreement, of March 7, 1934, which terminated the economic war. Considerable loss to foreign trade was sustained during the trade was sustained unring the economic war, particularly when analysed in conjunction with the general world crisis, fall of prices and of exchange. Thus German imports from Poland declined between 1928-1933 from 378,000,000 Rm. to 78,000,000 Rm., while at the same time German exports to Poland went down from 496,000,000 Rm. to 82,000,000 Rm. All in all, the Polish share in German foreign trade declined from 4.5% to 1.2%, and the German share in Polish foreign trade, from 38% to 18%.

Downward Trend

This unfavourable downward trend, particularly in so far as Gerexports to Poland are con-ed, has continued during man exports to rotating are con-cerned, has continued during 1934, Gurman exports declining from 82,000,000 Rm. in 1934 to 55,000,000 Rm. in 1934, in face of almost stationary figures of Polish exports to Germany, amounting in each of the last two years to about 78,000,000 Rm., leaving a favourable balance for Poland of 23,000,000 Rm.

Cordial political relations and the close economic bonds men-tioned above which have been developed in the meantime be-tween the two countries made it tween the two countries made it incumbent upon the respective governments to revise the temporary agreement of March 7, 1934, in order to enlarge and strengthen a basis for mutual trade relations. This may be brought about through a comprehensive commercial trea although there is more than of grave obstacle in the way of successful conclusion of such a treaty under existing conditions. One of the main objects of such a treaty would be to contribute effectively to a considerable in-crease in the volume of mutual crease in the volume of mutual trade. Germany's policy to maintain a favourable balance of trade at all costs has been fully demonstrated during the last few years, and has involved even the most drastic steps in the realm of international finance. So far as legitimate, appropriate transfer. legitimate commercial trans actions are concerned, French actions are concerned, French exporters have about 300,000,000 French francs of frozen assets in Germany; Czechoslovakia about 360,000,000 Cz. Kr.; while much larger sums may be mentioned in connection with Swiss and in connection with Swiss and Netherlands exports. One notable exception is German British re-lations which are based however upon export-import ratio of 100 to 55 in favour of German exports.

Increase of Exports

It is apparent, therefore, that in the course of negotiations for a commercial treaty Germany it was. The Old Lady of Threadneedle St., to the dismay of orthodox economists who remember the palmy Victorian days of free trade and free gold movements, is now working behind the scenes for stabilisation behind the scenes for stabilisation in circumstances which must prohibit both the supremacy of the sterling area over the dollar system and the restoration of the orthodox gold standard.

Stabilisation, when it comes, when it is comes, when it is short of a miracle, must be on the basis of stable price levels: which implies in the long run an epoch-making divorce between capitalism and debt, a major change in the whole course of civilisation. With stable price levels the producer can estimate his costs, assure his profits, and With stable price his costs, assure his profits, and restore himself to solvency. The Government will therefore be the only borrower, at rates of interest covering no more than the banking overheads, so that in effect the Government will be invoiced in the cover ment will be invoiced. issuing its own money and reducing with it the burden of public debt.

LONDON

Maintenance of Price

Ideas of this kind are spreading Ideas of this kind are spreading in British commercial, political and financial circles — to everyone's surprise they were recently out forward by a distinguished professor at the London School of Economics. More and more frequently one finds them discussed with some prominence in the Press. Thus, attention is paid to an article in the 'Midland Bank Review,' which expresses the ideas of an ex-chancellor, Mr. Reginald McKenna, saying that maintenance of a naticular that maintenance of a particular sterling price for gold is no longer regarded as the dominant objective of monetary policy. Though the gold value of sterling has dwindled by forty per cent., neither the Government nor the Bank does anything about it, would insist upon an increase of her exports to Poland in relation to imports. On the other hand, it must be kept in mind, that during the economic strife of a few years ago, and because of the abnormal world conditions the abnormal world conditions and exchange restrictions, Poland has developed a number of home industries, and has at the same time established a number of new contacts, through which a large portion of her agricultural exports previously exported to Germany, are now directed. However, as is claimed by the German side and not without reason, there is still a large number of high-quality German products to be offered to Poland without direct competition to Polish industry which could not conveniently manufacture such Polish industry which could not conveniently manufacture such products. On the other hand, Germany could easily increase her imports of Polish timber and certain agricultural products. Aside from the quantities and quality of the merchandise involved, and the fixing of a relative ratio of imports-exports ative ratio of imports-exports for both countries, there is one more element of first importance to be considered, namely, the settlement of mutual claims arising from actual and expected trade intercourse. Foreign exchange and credit restrictions and blocked accounts still existing in Germany, as well as quotas and compensation agreements of all kinds, render this subject a very delicate one.

Notwithstanding the above

very delicate one.

Notwithstanding the above obstacles, there can be said at the moment at least one thing, and that is that negotiations being carried on are considerably facilities that a grait of the said o facilitated by a spirit of cooper-ation and endeavours for mutual understanding, stressed both in official and unofficial quarters.

since the pound buys just as much in goods and services as in 1931. Stability of the value of the pound in terms of goods of the pound in terms of goods has replaced stability in terms of gold. "The fullness of the acceptance of the new principle," says the writer, "is indicated by the attitude of the government towards the question of stabilising towards the question of stabilising the gold value of sterling. To-day a clear distinction is seen between exchange stability and internal stability, and the second is regarded as at least of equal importance with the first. It may be possible in the long run to attain the two together. Meanwhile internal stability is bringing us far greater benefits, in solid economic welfare, than the pursuit of fixity of exchanges could possibly yield."

Monetary Initiative

The expression of such opinions The expression of such opinions as these has become of far greater importance since the failure of the drive against the franc, the failure to negotiate a Chinese loan bringing China into the sterling area, and the failure to inflate America by means of the Valerans' Bonus Billor other the Veterans' Bonus Bill or other devices. Stabilisation is in the air, but there can be no stabiliair, but there can be no stabilisation in terms of gold while America keeps up the tariff and attracts gold, which is immediately sterilised. In other words, recent events have put monetary initiative into new hands.

It would be short-sighted, therefore, to dismiss Lloyd George's Convention for Peace and Reconstruction, which met last week in London, as the futile attempt of a past statesman toregain hispower. The convention to regain his power. The convention was quite a successful affair, attended by thousands of delegates attended by thousands of delegates representing very different schools of thought, which passed with two dissentients a motion proposing to setuplocal Councils of Action with the aim of ensuring that prospective Members of Parliament should be pledged to certain policies of peace and reconstruction. Emphasis was laid upon the non-narty character. reconstruction. Emphasis was laid upon the non-party character of this activity, and although the ex-Premier in his speech made adroit advances to the Nonconformists, it was noted that his supporters included a Director of the Bank of England, in of the Bank of England, in addition to well-known industrialists and politicians of all parties. Some of the proposals made at the Convention are sig-nificant in the light of recent events.

Development Loan

Mr. Angus Watson and Sir Basil Blackett proposed a huge development loan (according to Mr. Watson, £1,000,000,000 at 2½ per cent.) to be used on internal reconstruction. There is no doubt but that a piquant political situation has piquant political situation has been created on top of a piquant financial situation. With the old international system seriously weakened, with stable prices as a policy of the Treasury, and with competition forced upon the Government in the matter of public expenditure, all this threatening to cut across orthodox political allegiances — England may well be entering upon her greatest change since 1688, when the Whir Oligarchy took charge. Whig Oligarchy took charge

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Warsaw section of the Society for the Care of National Heroes has gathered 3,800 zlotys toward building a monument to Father Skorupki on the place where he fell while fighting for where he fell Polish liberty.

A bi-weekly, edited and written for prisoners, is beginning publication in Lwów.

The first export of Polish horses to Palestine was noted this week, when 30 head were shipped through Konstanza on the Black Sea.

One hundred thousand tons of coal were shipped from Gdynia in fifteen ships for the Mediter-ranean this year. In addition to this, six thousand tons went to Brazil, and over three thousand to the Far East.

Herring fishing off Scotland has begun, and the first trans-ports of herrings are expected at Gdynia soon. This, doubtless, should cause a fall in the price of this commodity.

The Ministry of Finance, in agreement with the Ministries of Commerce and Industry and Agriculture, has issued a regulation (Journal of Laws of July 6, No 42) to reduce the duty on imported apples, grapes, apricots and mel-

A new street will be cut through the Saski Gardens. It will be thirty metres wide, with a the saski Gardens. It will be thirty metres wide, with a two-metre walk on each side. The street will be in the shape of the letter Z, and will run from Marszałkowska Street. to the right, to Zelazna Brama Place, then to Zabia Street, and past the rear of the Blue Palace on Senatorska Street.

Of the total number of for-Of the total number of foreigners who visited Warsaw during the year 1934, Germans stand first on the list, with 5,047 out of total of 29,288. In the second place come citizens of the United States, 2,964; then French, Czechosłovakia there were 1,950 and from England 1,738.

A new line, operated by a Norwegian shipping company, will connect Gdynia with Gulf of Mex-ico ports. The ships will leave Gdynia between the fifteenth and twentieth of each month and gular communication will be established with Savannah (a three weeks' trip), New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, in the United States; and Havana, Cube Vera Cruz and Tampico in Mexico.

The Government has posted notices giving particulars which will enable citizens of Poland to determine who has the right to vote for the Senate. Registration begins on July 11 and the right to vote is extended to:

Citizens who have been decorated with the Cross of Merit, the Cross for Bravery, or the Cross of the Resurrection of Poland;

Citizens who have had higher education either in the country or abroad;
Citizens with an officer's degree in the army;
Citizens who, by election, hold positions of confidence.
Amongst the universities abroad mentioned in the notices are the following Universities of Great Britain:

are the following Universities of Great Britain:
Birmingham
Bristol
CambridgeLeeds
London
Oxfor
Oxfor
Oxfor
Dublin
American Universities listed are:

University of California (Berkeley) Leland Stanford Junior Univer-sity

University of Colorado
Yale University (New Haven)
University of Chicago
Northwestern University (Chi

University of Michigan (Ann Arbor)
Johns Hopkins University (Baltimore) Harvard University (Cambridge, State University of Iowa (Iowa

State University of Iowa (Iowa University of Pennsylvani Ork). Columbia University (New York) (Philosophia Indelphia) Princeton University of Pittabunia Indelphia) Princeton University Boaton University Boaton University (Ithaca, N. Y.) New York University Thinosety of Illinois (University Intervented of Illinois (Illinois)).

A group of American teachers A group of American teachers is planning to open a school in Germany during the coming year; the school will be called the American School in Germany.

Bridge in the open air has been one of the attractions in several coffee houses in the centre of the city. As this violates the ordinance against games of chance, several arrests have been made, and now bridge is being played

The practice, heretofore, of give The practice, neretotore, or giv-ing the prospective emigrant his passport directly will be changed from July 15, and, in the fu-ture, such free passport will be given only through Emigration Syndicate in Warsaw.

DIRECT

With U. S. A.

From GDYNIA

s. s. "Cliffwood" —— J u l y 18 s. s. "Argosy" —— J u l y 26

From NEW YORK

s. s. "Scannenn" s. s. "Scanyork" — July 25

American Scantic Line

Telegr.. "Mooremack" Warsaw, Al. Jerozolimska 33 — Tel. 995-96 Gdynia, Madbrzeże Polskie- Tel. 17-324

AIR FRANCE, 35 Al. Jerozolimska Tel. 8-58-13

Connection Made By The "Railway Air Service Ltd"

From Croydon to Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Belfast, Glasgow.

TRAVEL & SEND YOUR FREIGHT VIA AIR FRANCE WARSAW-PRAGUE-VIENNA-BUDAPEST

BUCHAREST - PARIS - LONDON IN THE SAME DAY Tues.

17.30 11.05 5.00 3.00 Mon. Wed. Fri. Warsaw Prague Paris London Thurs.

Art, Music & Literature

The Jubilee of Stefan laracz

The present year has been unusually rich in jubilees of very prominent and very deserving artists of the Polish stage. Junonosza-Stepowski, Solski, Zelwerowicz, and Korolewicz-Waydowa rowicz, and Korolewicz-Waydowa have just recently celebrated the termination of long periods of work for the theatre; and on July I, Stefan Jaracz, one of the greatest artists in Poland, observed the thirlieth anniversary of his stage career.

Stefan Jaracz enjoys a curiously unique position in the galaxy of first magnitude stars that the Polish theatre boasts of; and this, partly because of his especially strong artistic individuality, and partly because of his inborn intuitive grasp of the full, true significance of a rôle. Many artists owe the magnificence of their owe the magnificence of playing to high skill and diligent work in their profession, others to splendid analysis of the char-acters they portray or to an to spiendid analysis of the char-acters they portray or to an interesting approach to every new rôle; Jaracz, however, though his acting embraces these ele-ments, too, owes the perfection of his interpretations rather to the feeling and vital truth that the feeling and vital truth the emanate from them under the emanate from them under the emanate from the under the emanate from the under the emanate from the see him in a rôle, it always seems as if he and the part were see him in a role, it always seems as if he and the part were an integral union impossible of separation, that he and only he can play it, that to give it to someone else would be a miscast. We always yield to the feeling that we are witnessing not an actor presenting a rôle with great skill and artistry, but a real man of flesh and blood living through moments of great joy or great tragedy in his life. The utter simplicity of his means of reaching tremendous effects, and the direct sincerity and naturalness of his playing so move the spectator that he can never forge! what he has seen; and whoever has seen Jaracz becomes his staunch admirer forever. To enumerate here all his incompawho ever has seen Jaracz becomes his staunch admirer forever. To enumerate here all his incomparable creations is impossible for their very number; but if we recall the impressions and the experiences he gave us as Franio in Perzyński's comedy The Luck Franio; as M. Brottoneau; or as Professor Oders in The Cry we have a faint idea of the gigantic scope of his dramatic genius, while again as Argan in Le Malade Imaginaire or Lekticki in Stonimski's, The Family, he proved that he is a genius of equal rank in comedy rôles. When we consider Jaracz, we feel not without a perfectly justified pride that not only Poland but even all Europe together can scarcely boast another artist of his stature. His jubilee therefore is a great jubilee of art and of the Polish theatre. This eeremony also makes us take account of stock and reflect whether it is not a shame that such a great artist has not found an appropriate milieu for his art. His corner to corner career, already of several years' duration, his playing on hardly more than improvised stages under the most disadvantageous of conditions,— these undoubtedly bring the artist honour of a kind, showing as they do that he can always conquer difficulties and ill luck, and can open a theatre himself and give it life. That it is thanks only to his genius and love for his art that Jaracz has earned art that Jaracz has earned his long and illustrious artistic by his long and illustrious artistic activity a place on the best stages of Poland goes without saying, and is it not high time that those responsible for the stages of Poland goes without saying, and is it not high time that those responsible for the development of histrionic art in Poland should take an interest in his further activity? It will be ong before we have another uch. We believe that this jubilee vill clearly show the abnormality such. We believe that this jubilee will clearly show the abnormality of the present situation and that before long Stefan Jaraez together with his theatre will be given his right place in the hierarchy of deserving players.

Under the auspices of the Minister of Education, Mr. Janusz Jedrzejewicz, and of the President of the City of Warsaw, Mr. Stefan Starzyński, the jubilee was held in the Teart Wielki on Monday, July first. Jaraez gave three fragments from his great rôles, appearing in succession as the Notary Milezek in Fredro's comedy. Revenge (Zemsta), as Szela in Zeromski's tragedy, Turoń, and as Lekcicki in Stonimski's The Family, receiving thunderous applause after each performance. Of the other artist taking part, Karol Bende, Daphowska, Kossowska, Modzelewska Luszyzewski Danillowicz and 7i. ska, Kossowska, Modzelew Łuszczewski, Daniłłowicz and Modzelewska mińska deserve special mention.

minska deserve special mention.
The tremendous ovation given to Jaracz by the audience and by his fellow artists proved once again that he has an ever growing hold, not only on his closer friends, but on the whole cultured

"Toi c'est moi."

The summer season of the Teatr Letni is to be devoted to operetta and musical comedy. Such a policy is completely justified by the public demand for this kind of performance; when, however, it is fostered by such an ear-nest institution as the Society of Theatrical Culture in Poland, then the literary and musical level must be notable, and is a further justification.

La Belle Helene of Offenbach

La Belle Helene of Offenbach was beautiful in a music full of charm and finesse, and was distinguished by a perfect literary recasting by Hemar. Music on the Street had a great deal of sincere Streef had a great deal of sincere feeling, and, as a seenic work, possessed high values. The latest novelty, however, of the Teatr Letni, Toi c'est moi, reminds us of a music hall performance rather than of an operetta or musical comedy, as it is distinguished neither by originality in contents, nor by melody in the music. M. Henri Duvernois, in reality a very talented French novelist and dramatist, has employed the old subject of a change of documents with the resulting tribulations. The development is much too long and lacks come situatoo long and lacks comic situa-tions. M. Simon's music, in try-ing to attain modernity, is very noisy, and we do not meet with the desiratum in works of this sort, melodies easy to remember sort, melodies easy to remember and agreeable to listen to. When we add that a banal ballet occupied a greater part of the action, then we have the true measure of Toi c'est moi. The performance itself was tiring, the recast by Tuwim contributing what humour

AMERICAN CONCERT

In honour of July Fourth, the American Independence Day, a concert of American music was broadcast by the Polish Radio. The programme consisted of a Suite by McDowell, Andantino

Suite by McDowell, Andantino for piano and violin by Winston Cram, a Melody by Davies, and American Melodies by Stephen Foster.

Mr. McDowell's music is romantic in spirit, it is strongly mantic in spirit, it is strongly under the influence of the Ro-mantic School and while poetic manue school and while poetic in feeling has nothing characteristically American about it.

Mr. Cram's Andantino is an interesting composition, the harmonies are modern and individual and there is a freshness and sin-cerity about it which to us Eu-ropeans seems characteristic of Davies' Melody has distinct charm, but is not particularly original, whilst Stephen Foster's transcription of American melo-dies has plenty verve and go, transporting us into an atmos-phere of the New World, Such concerts of national music are a good way to further mutual interest and help in the cause of international good-will. Music speaks a universal language and speaks a universal laugues should help to universal under-standing. It would be well if our standing contained more often compositions by American musicians who are too little known in Poland. — K. M.

New Giant Zeppelin By Lady Drummond-Hay

The new Zeppelin LZ -129 is xpected to make its first transexpected to make its first trans-atlantic flight from Friedrichs-hafen to Lakehurst late in October, Dr. Hugo Eckener told me to-day. The giant airship will carry fifty passengers and around twenty -five tons of mail and freight, Eckener said that the new Zeppelin would embody the les-sons and experience of all the many previously constructed many previously constructed airships and would be the strongest, fastest and most perfect dirigible ever built in Friedrichs-hafen. With four 16-cylinder Daimler Benz Diesel oil motors of 1200 horse-power each, throt-tled back to 900 horse power, the cruising speed will be 80 or 81 miles per hour. Eckener reckons that the westward flight from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst and New York will be made under 60 hours and the eastward return flight in 48 or 50. Eckener is not Hight in 48 or DU. Eckener is not much concerned about the appar-ent threatening rivalry and competition of the Sikorsky and Glenn Martin Pan-American Clip-pers and giant flying-boats that are being developed in France and England.

Speed is important, but safety, "Speed is important, but safety, comfort, range and load capacity even more so in long trans-ocean commercial air traffic," said the doctor, "There is as yet no flying-boat that has crossed the North Atlantic with passengers, mail and freight in non-stop flight. (Continued on page 5 col. 1) is in the play. The evening would have been quite wasted were it not for Dymsza playing his rôle with graceful humour and true wit. Whatever interest and suc-cess the play may have is due to him. In addition to Dymsza, Janecka, Brzezińska, and Orwid gave very amusing characterizations. The direction by Warnecki and the direction by warnecki and the sets by Jarocki contributed to the failure of the play, as they were banal, lacking the artistic faculty of invention.

BANK GOSPODARSTWA KRAJOWEGO

(NATIONAL ECONOMIC BANK)

Jerozolimska 1, Warsaw. Telegraphic Address: KRAJOBANK, WARSAW.

Paid-up Capital Reserve Fund Zl. 47,084,577 Total of Balance Sheet, as on December 19 Branches in Poland. Correspondents all over the world. Handling of banking transactions of every description.

PRESS REVIEW

Minister Beck's Visit to Berlin

31, 1934

Gazeta Polska, the chief pro-Government organ, considers that the search for side issues and aims in the Berlin visit of the Polish Foreign Minister to Berlin is unnecessary and su-perfluous. The question of stabiperfluous. The question of stabi-lizing Polish-German relations is a matter of supreme importance not only for Warsaw and Berlin but for the whole of Europe. The paper says:

The paper says:

The visit of the representative of the Polish Republic to the German Government was not only a return visit for those of the German Ministers Goering and Goebbels to Poland, but also an answer to the speech of the Reich Chameellor made the 21st of May, 1935, in which he asserted that Germany does not only scrupulously observe does not only scrupulously observe are more strongly compared to the continued prolongation of that agreement and that Polish-German relations be seen more strongly cemented.

Minister Dealt we consider the continued prolongation of that agreement and that Polish-German relations be seen more strongly cemented.

Minister Beck, according to the Gazeta Polska, has expressed the same desire in the name of Poland. It writes further, "In this way the undoubted wish of both parties for permanent sta-bilisation of peaceful relations between Poland and Germany has been firmly based and this is a distinct step forward in view. is a distinct step forward in view of the diplomatic understandings existing heretofore, which bore a temporary character."

The Warszawski Dziennik Narodowy, organ of the National Democrat Party, writes that there is a lack of authoritative information allowing of a proper estimate of the Berlin conversations and that while the foreign Press commentaries cannot be take as a criterion the official state ment has only announced that the "Polish-German declaration of the 26th of January 1934 has proved its full value in every

In the opinion of the Dziennik Narodowy the further develop-ment of events alone will show the results of the meeting of Minister Beck with the German

We expect that facts will soon give these proofs, considering the series of important problems awaiting solution in European politics which directly or indirectly concern both Germany and

The Opposition organ co cludes with the remarks that:

The trend of foreign policy, according to this paper, results from the geo-political conditions of the nation and the rôle it is destined to play in history.

Zl. 2,211,129,283

Facing Eastward

The Upper Silesian Polonia, organ of the Christian Democrats, is dissatisfied with the new electoral system considering that its authors are too little acquainted with relations and opinions in the western territories of Po-land and in Little Poland. Ac-cording to Polonia the inhabitants of these regions have long been accustomed to parliamentary life and have acquired routine in the election of their representatives.

Polonia writes:

Who can suppose that the population, long practised in election struggles will not clearly understand that the so-called elections to the Sejm, of candidates already designated, looks like irony?

Polonia sees in the new system roiona sees in the new system an injury to the western terri-tories, as the authors of the project, in diminishing the num-ber of mandates from 444 to 208 have comparatively dimin-ished the number of mandates in the western districts more than in the eastern, under the pretext of the necessity for cancelling the privileges enjoyed by the western regions in comparison with those of the east which had been created by the former by the former suffrage system.
"All very fine", writes Polonia

"All very fine", writes Polonta, "that the gentlemen of B. B. (Non-Party Bloc) wish to be just, but they have forgotten one circumstance, well known in the western districts and especially in Silesia: It is that of the actual participation in voting."

The paper then goes on to show that a far larger percentage of the nonulation took part in show that a far larger percentage of the population took part in the elections in the west of Poland than in the east; voting amounted in some places in Silesia to almost one hundred per cent, while in the east the number of the property ber of votes reached 50-60 per

HOTEL DIRECTORY

Warsaw

BRISTOL Centre of the city. 250 room Restaurant—Cocktail Bar-Dancing.

Wilno

ST.—GEORGES Adama Mickiewicza 20 Wilno.

CONTINENTAL A Home Away From Home

IS A TORY DEATH

By Keats Patrick

(Copyright by The Warsaw Weekly for Poland, and by The Bobbs-Merrill Company elsewhere).

(Homer Huddleston and Tom Collins, summoned by telephone, reach Marshall Rich's place, to find him with a gun in his hand, confessing to the murder of his wife and Felix Starbuck. When the police arrive they discover another near the bodies. Sally Shalfoe, newspaper correspondent, tries to find clines to prove her theory that kich did not commit the murder).

"I mean, if each of us for the sake of argument, were to murder someone, each would do it a different way although given the same weapons and time and were to murch some weapons and time and place."

"I don't believe it," Mildred said, she who usually agreed with all Ka said. "I mean, only crazy people commit murder, and none of us is mad."

Lightfoot leaned toward Katherine.

"You know Marshall Rich," he said. "Not very well, I know. I overheard you as well as Miss Shaftce. She asked you a leading question. I'll put it another way. Do you think Rich did discover his wife and her lover under circumstances which made him rush for a weapon and shoot them down while seeing red?"

"I'm no detective," Ka answered with a laugh."
There is his confession, after all."

"And there is Sally's idea that the confession is a fake, also," Mildred pointed out. "She hints that it might be possible Marsh is trying to cover up something."

at take, uso, and the strying to cover up something."

"What could he cover up that is worse than murder?" Katherine asked. "Someone shot Felix in cold blood, that's obvious. Cactus is pretty dead, also. If Rich didn't do it, who did, and why should Marshall hold the killer's honour more precious than his own?"

"Sally will have a time proving her theory," Homer commented. "Unless Rich repudiates his confession."

"Tell me something about Miss Shaftoe," Lightfoot said. "You all seem to know her well. Wasjahe a close friend of the Riches?"

Homer and Tom looked at each other, looked at their wives.

their wives.

"I-d don't know," Tom said. 'Rich and his wife didn't pal around with the newspaper crowd particularly. Probably all they knew they met through Mildred and me. Why, that's how they met Sally, come to think of it. Over at our house, about six or eight months ago. Then they asked her over when they gave the next narty."

Then they asked use the party."

But Sally isn't the social sort," Mildred added.

"She doesn't go to folks' homes for fun, only to pick up gossip. She is pretty advanced. Rather pal around with men."

"Semitic signled. "Selma Hansen calls her the Tiger with men."

Prentice giggled. "Selma Hansen calls her the Tiger

Woman," she said. "Ever since Carlo fell for her."

"Oh, that's just gossip," Homer snorted.

"Well, you know it's true," Prentice declared.
"Carlo did make an awful fool of himself, and Sally did so encourage him. If Selma weren't such a sensible girl—" did so encourage him. If Selma weren't such a sensible girl—women'. Tom groaned. An hour ago you were chumming with Sally and now you are gossiping abut her virtue. And I got bawled out when I suggested Felix wasn't my choice for a playmate to Ka." Ka flushed. "Did you?" she murmured. "Why didn't you warn me directly?"

"Mildred—" Tom began, but that person interrupted him."

ted him.

"Felix is one thing and Sally is another," she said.

"And Ka can look out for herself. A woman has instincts, but men are such pliant creatures, especially toward women who can talk business."

Homer coughed with deliberate loudness.

"I'm not one of the kids-kitchen-kirk school but I'm against newspaper gals. I'm sure a man could even run the home page and the cooking column better than most so-called newspaperwomen," Homer observed very sagely.

most so-called newspaperwomen, holler observed we sagely.

But to get back to your original question, Mr.
Congressman," said Tom. "Sally is a pretty widely, if not importantly, syndicated column writer. You know, the woman's angle on the nation's capital. Mostly gossip. He-said, she said stuff and what the President's daugh-He-said, she-said stuff and what the Pression is daugn-ter wore at the Powhatan roof last Tuesday. Also who's ex-wife is going to marry who's husband as soon as he can get a divorce. Once in a while she digs out, or deduces or unravels a real dope story that Arthur Krock wishes he had written for the New York Times. Or me, for that matter."

Or me, for that matter."

"And she is the world's greatest armchair detective," Homer added, as Amelia announced dinner. "There isn't a newspaper swiped from one of these honoursystem, penny-in-the-slot stands but what she has a theory and builds up a mental picture of the criminal and his habitat. Of course every newspaper writer thinks he's smarter than the cops but—"
"It is still so warm we aren't having soup," Prentice said.
"She's forty if she's a day," Mildred opined.
"She's forty if she's a day," Mildred opined.

Over eigarettes and highballs after dinner the talk went back inevitably to where it had left off before. Lightfoot had been next to Katherine at the table and had been particularly attentive to her, but she had gone upstairs with her sister and Prentice to look at the latter's new something or other.

"It's a funny thing how women will gossip about each other," Homer said. "Sally isn't a bad one, not the home-wrecker she was made out to be."

"Still, I got a remarkably vivid picture of La Shaftoe that way, even if it may be somewhat of a caricature," Lightfoot observed. "And that Israel case she recalled is a legal classic. She has a mind."

"Why the interest in the lady, Congressman?"

Tom asked.

"I told you that if I'm with friends, as I hope I am, to lay off that congressman stuff," Lightfoot interposed, "I used to love it in my first term. But the name is A. Gilligan Lightfoot, and mostly folks call me Gill. As for your question, Tom, my interest in the Tiger Woman is not amorous. For one thing I want to know why she is so interested in this case. I have one explanation and a half."

"That's funny. Why a half?"

"The explanation is her passion for crime detection. The other is—the half, I mean — her preference for male company. Tell me, is she romantically inclined?"

clined?"

"You mean moonlight and roses and that sort of
"You mean moonlight and roses and that sort of "You mean moonlight and roses and that sort of stuff? Hardly." Tom spoke through a cloud of smoke. "Anyhow, all newspaper women sour on their own sex and pal with men, trying to act like men, too." "No, I mean romantically to the extent she'd pipe-dream this theory of Rich making himself a scapegoat," Lightloot explained. "Is she a sentimentalist?"

Lightfoot explained. 'Is she a sentimentalist?'

'Can't say. My guess would be, anything for a theory for her to work on. What makes her theory seem cockeyed to me is that Rich isn't that sort of plumed knight,' Tom said. 'He was never demonstrative toward his wife in public, and when he was all wrapped up in some work he'd let her go to parties alone and come home from them by herself. Especially of late. 'I've felt downright sorry for the girl, but I don't see what made her pal up with Felix. He was a make, regardless of ""Tom's voice trailed off." 'Off course I have no business butting in on this affair," Lightfoot said abruptly. 'I'm a rank outsider. I just knew "Cactus you call her?" Alleen when she was a Vegas College. I wonder why her cousin doesn't telegraph? Maybe I'd better wire him about funeral arrangements."

arrangements."

The girls came back, and when everybody was settled Ka asked Lightfoot what he thought about Sally's theory.

"I can't imagine what it is, to begin with," he said. "If Marsh didn't do the shootings, who did—and why?" "What did you learn from the coroner?" Prentice what did you learn from the coroner?" Frentice asked.

"Oh, where the bullets went, and from where they had been fired, and that sort of thing," Lightfoot said. He lighted a cigarette and smoked a while, frowning.

"The doctor did say that both had been eating salted peanuts," Lightfoot added casually, looking up with a position.

with a smile.

"That's a great help," snorted Homer. "What does that prove?"

"I don't know." Lightfoot replied. "I found a cellophane bag with a few peanuts in it, and there were peanuts in the vines behind the wall."

"So it is no clue at all to the theoretical murderer, is it? Mildred observed.

"I wonder," Ka said, with sudden interest.

"What else did the doctor tell you?" Mildred woulder, Ka sady, with studen interest.

*That Felix had been shot twice in the groin and throat, and that one wound was inflicted several minutes after the other."

*I move the meeting adjourn, and thanks for very swell dinner and superb liquor and conversation."

Tom declared, rising. *I also contend that these facts are self-evident; Rich either murdered his wife and her companion or he wants the world to believe he did. I'm against capital punishment, so I don't say let him burn as he either deserves or wants to, regardless, but I think it is silly to mull over this as if it were a detective story or a newspaper mystery serial with a prize for the neatest solution."

*Maybe you are right, Tom," Lightfoot said, "It all depends on the major premises, as I was told in debating class where I first got the idea I'd like to be a congressman."

denating class where I first got the idea I d like to be a congressman."

"Why didn't you yearn to be a senator?" Homer asked, as the visitors moved toward the door.

"I'm too young," Lightfoot answered. "I like the excitement of campaigning every two years."

"A lot of excitement your opposition gives you,"

Tom snorted.

Tom snorted.

"Well, be that as it may, I still have to get up and make speeches and shake hands and attend meetings and admire babies, and I like it. I'm like the late Calvin Coolidge. Did you ever hear that story?

vin Coolidge. Did you ever hear that story?

"It seems shortly after Mr. Coolidge became President an old-time political pal of his came to the White House to see him. He knew Cal 'when,' so he breezed into the executive office and said to the major of the guards: 'Tell Mr. Coolidge so and so is here and wants to see him.' Well, he was asked if he had an appointment, and he didn't, but he insisted he was an old friend and ally. So he was allowed to cool his heels and pretty soon a Secret Service man came and talked to him and passed him on to a secretary, who talked with him, and after a wait he was passed on to another secretary, and he waited some more because the President was busy, but after an hour or so he was admitted to the inner office. After the formalities were over this New England chieftain began to complain about his treatment.

" "My lands, Cal—Mr. President,' he said. 'I knew about his treatment.

"'My lands, Call—Mr. President,' he said. 'I knew you when you were a lawyer with shiny pants, and when you were in the Legislature saying not a word, and as you advanced I never was able to see you, day or night. I've sat in your parlor in my shirtsleeves, and I've eaten fried scrod off linoleum with you. Yet here I find you hidden away behind fellows in blue uniforms with brass buttons and gold lace. An old friend, and yet I'm passed on to detectives and under sccretaries and assistant sccretaries and grand cyclops and imperial potentates. How in the name of the living Buddha can you stand it?

"And Calvin Coolidge looked up with that funny little bite-in-an-apple smile of his and said: 'I like it'

"There was an honest man. I hope I'm the same. Maybe after ten years or so in the House I'll be willing to retire to the Senate for terms of six years and no time off for good behaviour, and enjoy making speeches without gag rules. But not until I'm slowing up. Besides, when I started out on my career I wasn't eligible for the Senate on account of age, and I didn't have the gall and backing of Rush Holt."

So the Collinses drove off, with Lightfoot sitting beside Katherine, and the Huddlestons went back to clean up the cigarette butts and glasses.

In the Collins' back yard Katherine and A. Gilligan.

Lightfoot enjoyed a before-bed cigarette apiece.

"Tell me about yourself," said A. Gilligan.

"Good gracious!" Ka laughed, "What in the world is there to tell about? Born twenty-three years ago in Denver, lived there with a normal set of parents, came to Washington at nineteen for Eastern culture, and got a normal dosage of that."

"That isn't exactly what I wanted to know," A. Gilligan said. "Where are you studying psychology? I mean, what are you preparing yourself for?"

"Psychology because it is very interesting, not difficult, generally applicable and perhaps [specifically applicable in some sort of job. I'd like to do personnel work. And I am going on with school because there wasn't any job when I graduated."

"And doesn't marriage enter into your scheme at all?"

"And think I am a normal woman, sir. I believe in love, and I think marriage in my scheme would be pre-

"I think I am a normal woman, sir. I believe in 'I think I am a normal woman, str. I believe in love, and I think marriage in my scheme would be predicted on that. I don't believe marriage is the one and only goal in a woman's life, You know, I might dare your exalted position and ask you the same question with more pertinency.' Lightfoot laughed and threw away his cigarette

Lightfoot laughed and threw away his organists.

*You might at that," he replied. "And I might answer as reasonably that I also believe in love."

*Did you love Cactus Rich—Aileen?"

*No! A matured man rarely falls in love with a woman whom he remembers best as a gangling kid. It wasn't for lost love that I came here when I heard of her death. A sentimental journey, maybe, but I had a real affection for her father and long and pleasant memories of her family and environment. Besides, the boys had to het home to attend to their political fences, and I'll have to do campaigning myself within a few weeks."

few weeks."
"It must be interesting and exciting."
"I think I will have interest and excitement before I leave

They mused in the darkness. Then Gill dared a question.

"You knew Felix pretty weh?"

"Pretty well," she echoed. "He — he came to the house occasionally."

house occasionally."

Silence again, broken at last by the almost anachronistic sound of hoofbeats.

"Good heavens, that might be the milkman. I must go in," Ka exclaimed.

"Must you? It has been interesting, this chat."

"I need sleep, Mr. Congressman."

"Gill."

"Mr. Congressman."

*Mr. Congressman."
Saturday morning, while Homer and Tom sat in their offices reading mail and the government departmental 'handouts'—sheaves of mimeographed announcements, reports and proposals — a messenger boy brought identical telegrams to the two correspondents. San Francisco Cal. Accidently learned Alleens death last night terribly shocked please get in touch Rep Gill Lightfoot if in Washington old friend suggest cremation estate will settle or shall I wire funds sailing noon Hawaii wire me Dollar Line

Neil Mullins

"I suppose that means Gill is an old friend, and is not a phrase of familiarity to me and you," said Homer, while Tom dialed his house number.

"Hello, Midred, is Gill there?" spoke Tom into the mouthpiece... "Oh, he is, is he? Will you ask him to come in and talk to me?... Thanks, sweetness. (Homer, I think our statesmanly friend is sparking my learned sister-in-law. They're out in the—) Hello, Gill? Tom. Got a telegram here from a Neil Mullins. Is that the ranching cousin of Cactus's?... Oh, you did?... Well, you won't get an answer because this is from Frisco and the lad's going places. Listen—"

He read the telegram.

"Got it straight?... What am I supposed to do?.... Okay... Yes. Right-o. See you at lunch."

Tom hung up a moment, and then dialed again. Meanwhile he said to Homer:

"Gill wired to the ranch an hour ago.
"Hello? Take a telegram please. To Neil Mullins, Dollar Line, San Francisco. Lightfoot has already taken charge of everything and will wire you. Arthur Collins and Homer Huddleston."

"Cremation is the sensible and sanitary thing to decrease they have the sense of the sense of the property."

and Homer Huddleston."

"Cremation is the sensible and sanitary thing to do especially when no relatives are left behind to lean sadly against the headstone," Homer observed. "However, give me a nice old fashioned graveyard and a weeping willow over my sod. Well, I'm glad we aren't rung in as pallbearers as well as witnesses."

(To be continued)

NEW GIANT ZEPPELIN

(Continued from page 3 col. 3)

examining the last still to be attached. ring girder still to be attached. Knut called my attention to the complicated joint where the fin enters the main structure of the ship.

"It took 300 working hours to assemble this joint," he remarked.
"There will be seven or eight million rivets in the completed Zeppelin. LZ 129 will have 100 tons dead weight, around 220 tons loaded. The lifting gas ca-pacity will be 7,300,000 cubic feet pacity will be 7,300,000 cubic feet contained in 16 balloonets made of synthetic goldbeaters skin which has proved more gas-tight and considerably cheaper than the real goldbeaters skin first used on the Graf Zeppelin. 60 metric tons of oil for the Diesel motors will be carried in 25 oil tanks of two and a half tons each. There will be 10 tons of water in tanks which in case of emergency would be emptied in 48 seconds."

Knut explained a new scienti-Knut explained a new scientific navigation instrument to replace the echologue in the navigation room which might be called "the whistling altimeter." This is an instrument that emits a shrill whistle, the echo of which returns from the ground or sea over which the Zeppelin is travelling and records the altitude in metres on a dial. It also operates through for and altitude in metres on a dial. It also operates through fog and tells the navigator how high the airship is above the surface of the sea or land. An aid to night-flying will be the 5½ million candle-power searchlight which, directed downwards, will enable the navigator to use the drift metro as well by night as by day. This Zeppelin will have the most powerful electrical plant of any yet built into an airship. It will have a long-range wireless station for both long and short wave transmission. Another feature will be a compressed air-ture will be a compressed air-tube hyphen post from the pas-seager quarters to the wireless room to the bridge. Wireless messages of the passengers or from the control cabin are thus shot directly to the wireless compared to the control cabin are thus shot directly to the wireless operator. to the wireless operator and

585-91

What interested me very much was the passenger accommodation as compared to that of the Graf Zeppelin, in which I have travelled over 50,000 miles. On the Graf the passengers, cabins and saloons are in the gondonal travelled to the control of th la, with the bridge, navigation room, wireless station and kitch-en underneath, and outside the main structure of the bow. In the main structure of the bow. In the new airship, which is still un-named, the passenger quarters are in the interior of the body of the ship, well forward. There are 25 two-berth cabins, each equipped two-borth cabins, each equipped with running hot and cold water. Unlike the Graf all are "inside" rooms with no outside view. The cabins are in the centre with the social hall and reading and writing room on one side, the dining room on the other. Around the whole runs a other. Around the whole runs a small promenade with large win-dows set at an angle through which passengers can look out. The deck below the principal passenger deck contains the electric kitchen, the crew's mess and the smoking room. An elec-tric elevator from the kitchen to dining-room will facilitate ice. The swing-doors of the xing-room are so designed smoking-room are so designed that this room remains gas-proof. Dr. Eckener told me that until a large Zeppelin hangar is available in America no regular transatlantic Zeppelin service can be inaugurated. The United States Navy Department, he said, had kindly placed the Lakehurst hangar at his disposal for a numhangar at his disposal for a num-ber of round-trip flights with the new Zeppelin to give him the opportunity of demonstrating the practicability of regular trans-atlantic Zeppelin passenger and mail services. Captain Lehmann, who has flown about one and a half flown about one and a ha million miles in airships declare to me that he would not hesitate to me that he would not besitate to cross the Atlantic at any season and in almost any kind of weather with the new Zeppelin. and freight in non-stop flight. Compare the 70 transatlantic flights with passengers, mail and freight between Friedrichs-(Continued on page 6 col 3) has worked towards the realisation his policy that collective arity is the only means of security is the only means of establishing and maintaining peace. To his practical statesmanship is due the reorganisation, as a political unit, of the Little Entente, combining Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. Said M. Titulescu: "The Little Entente has prevented war for fifteen years in Central Europe." He was one of the motivating.

(Continued from page 1 col 4)

He was one of the motivating forces in the consummation of the Balkan Pact, which harmonised ancient enmities existing between Rumania, Greece and Yugoslavia. ureece and rugoslavia. One of Titulescu's most recent achieve-ments was the re-establishment of diplomatic relations between Rumania and Soviet Russia. He reorganised the whole financial structure of his country. He created and executed important reforms conceived on an occidental basis, and gave to Rumunia her first income tax.

Rummia her first income tax.

Direct and practical, he makes little attempt to camouflage in diplomatic phrases the fact that the fundamental cause of war is rooted in economics.

"It is necessary." he declared,
"that frontiers be spiritualised by economic agreements. With closed frontiers we go to war."

Asked if rade agreements.

by economic agreements. With closed frontiers we go to war." Asked if trade agreements, which are increasing so rapidly which are increasing so rapidly in Europe, would assist in the return of world prosperity, he replied: "Undoubtedly such arrangements have their value. But they have not yet been made on a scale sufficiently comprehensive."

"What, in your opinion, would hasten economic recovery?" he was asked.

The long olive hands, gestures commanded when he served as attention President of the League Assembly at Geor the League Assembly at Geneva, clasped and unclasped. "I would suggest," he said," that every country produce that which it is most capable of producing. Then to distribute its own productors. to produce all commodities there will undoubtedly be a resultan strangulation of international com be a resultant factor in world prosperity."

He added: "We must give to every country an international economic function. This method economic function. This method of interlocking trade might conceivably lead to an economic United States of Europe. The system can only work, however, if each nation agrees to incorporate and to conform to such a programme simultaneously. Otherwise each country would be faced with the old proposition of 'I cannot do what they say,' I have to do what they do."

A final query: "Do you see an end to the world depression?"
For answer, a shrug of the end to the world depression?"

For answer, a shrug of the broad stooped shoulders which carry so large a share of his country's responsibilities:
"Not very soon," he concluded.

(Copyright by The Warsaw Weekly in Poland and by N.A.N.A. elsewhere.) ANTIQUES

Paweł Grodecki

DIPLOMATIQUE

The Austrian Minister, M. offinger, left Warsaw for a Hoffinger, left notinger, left warsaw for a holiday of a few weeks and during his absence the Counsel-lor of the Legation, M. Louis Jordan, will direct the affairs of the Legation.

The Estonian Minister, M. Hans Markus, has returned to Warsaw from a holiday abroad.

The Latvian Minister, D. Mi-kelis Valters, has left Warsaw on matters in connection with his office, and M. Nicolaus Abol-tins, Secretary of the Légation, will set as Chargé d'Affaires during his absence.

The Swedish Minister, M. Erik The Swedish Minister, M. Erik Boheman, has left Warsaw and during his absence the Secretary of the Legation, M. Erik de Post, will act as Chargé d'Affaires.

The Swiss Chargé d'Affaires, M. Alfred de Clapadère, has returned to Warsaw after a short absence abroad.

The British Military Attache Colonel George Francis Connal-Rowan, has returned to Warsaw after a short absence.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Hamilton-Stokes left Warsaw on Tuesday for a visit to the United States.

ANGLO-AMERICAN COLONY

Mr. and Mrs. J. Klahr Huddle have returned to Warsaw.

. . Miss H. Burford has left Warsaw for a month's holiday abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connolly have returned to Warsaw after a holiday spent in England.

Miss Elsie Dalby left on Thursday for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Straka re-turned to Warsaw on Saturday after a short visit to Germany.

Miss Gardiner left Warsaw on Wednesday evening for a visit to England.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. G. Metcalfe Mr. and Mrs. M.A.G. Metcalfe left on Thursday for Belgium and England. Mrs. Metcalfe expects to return to Warsaw during Sep-tember and Mr. Metcalfe at the end of July.

Excursions of Polish-American merchants, which are now visiting Poland, were greeted in Warsaw on July 10 by the Polish Merchants Association. Numerous conferences took place, the theme being the expansion of Polish exports to the United States.

FASHION NOTES

(Copyright by The Warsaw Weekly

Hollywood: "The fashion world is due for a renaissance elegance," says Travis Ban ace stylist of Hollywood, ace stylist of Hollywood, who creates the chic that Paramount beauties wear on the screen. "Magnificence of materials, formality of line, and the subtle blending of colours that were the keynotes of style in the past are coming into their own again for late summer and early autumn wear." autumn wear.

Even informal that most costume, the pajama, will take on a formal air this autumn, as it will be made of far more elaborate material than in the past

Sylvia Sidney wears a pajama costume of advanced mode in her newest film, "Accent on Youth." The Persian influence is apparent in this suit, which is fashioned of Paisley lamé. In contrast to former styles,

In contrast to former styles, the knee-length tunic gives these pajamas the dignity of a frock and the high neckline, with its carelessly tied bow, might be on the bodice of any informal dinner

A brilliant red belt of suede is fastened with a huge buckle of metal rings, and Sylvia Sidney brilliant red belt of suede suede sandals to match belt.

Travis Banton thinks fans will revived with evening frocks xt winter, and he will design his fans more as a contrast and high light to gowns than as a part of them.

Cotton lace, in varying colours is coming more and more into popularity as summer goes on. Dance frocks of this material, pance frocks of this material, cut with the precision and care of a smart evening gown, are characteristic of most of the younger set seen at the beach clubs and homes these warm nights.

Anita Louise's blonde beauty Anta Louises blonde beauty is enhanced by a frock of deep sapphire blue cotton lace, cut high in back and with a low "V" in front. The huge pleated ruffle of blue net that forms the collar of this dress is gathered to stand out around her shoulders like a Pierrette's ruff.

The skirt is form-fitting to the nees and then billows forth in knees and then billows forth in a fullness that just touches the floor in front, but goes on to form a tiny train in back. Low-heeled blue satin sandals complete this cestume, with which Anita Louise wears pink camellias for a corsage.

Al. Jerozolimskie 31, tel. 999-50 ANTIQUES "SZTUKA" ewly Opened (Next to Chemis Sienkiewicza 6 Tel. 609-65

High Last June 26 July 10 BONDS (in percentage of par) 47.25 67.13 41.00 67.50 83.00 6% Dollar Loan, 1920 4%% Dollar Mortgage Bonds (Warsaw Land Credit Association) 58 00 52.00 48.50 49.00 34.75 51.00 31.00 49,50 5% Mortgage Bonds Warsaw Credit Ass'n) 64.25 58.00 58,25 60.00 SHARES share) (in zlotys per Bank of Poland . 70.25 1 95,25 | 93,00 90.25 97.00 77.00 Haberbusch & Schiele 50.50 37:00 40.00 34.00 38.00 Lilpop, Rau & Loewen-12.65 13.00 9.13 9.15 10.10 Starachowice 11,50 13,00 34.50 Warsaw Coal Company 15.50 9.00 15.00

To cover a lot of ground in a short time

RIDE A PUCH

AUSTRO-DAIMLER, STEYR, PUCH

Warsaw, Wierzbowa 8.

Warsaw Stock Exchange Quotations

Large Selection Period Furniture Antiques Persian Rugs Low Prices Buying and Selling on Commission Jan matuszewsk.

HOT, PERSPIRING FEET

Dr. Scholl's Foot Powder, an antiseptic powder for hot, tired, perspiring feet.
When sprinkled on the feet or in the shoes and stockings, soothes and cools.
Prevents the friction of shoes and stockings and eliminates disagreeable odours. Makes new shoes more comfortable.
Use it daily!

Dr. Scholl's FOOT COMFORT SERVICE

Warsaw, Marszałkowska 154

CROSS WORD PUZZLE

				1	2	3	4			5	6	7	8
			9						10	100	No Poly	DE VE		11
		12						13	100		913		14	199
	15						16					17	N IK
18						19	-				20		0,90
21					22					23
24				25			18		26		Talle I	7711	27	28
29			30					31					32
33		34					35	M	17/1			36	0	171
		37				38	0	100	VI II		39	100	die	- 0
40	41				42			Direct States		43	400	DETER	Dog	CHAIR
44				45			1		46		(Carlo	LID 8	the St
47			48					49			10 8
50		51		368	V desp		52	1000	LITTE OF	W d
	53						54	1072		d d

HORIZONTAL

- To grind to a pulp
 Polish
 Polish
 Prickle
 Arrives at the full amount Gauntle!
 A valley
 Pronoun
 A dried plum
 A dried plum
 Pat of "to be"
 Large spring garden flower

- Part of "to be"
 Large spring garden flower
 Falseface worn at carnivals
 Part of base ball outfit
 Chair
 Cubes
 An obstruction
 Beard of various

- An obstruction
 Beard of various grasses
 Opulent
 Gaudy ornamentation
 Football position
 House of a religious brotherhood
 Negative
 Basic elements derived from ore

- Greek letter
 To Inbrieate
 Flat-bottomed boat
 To mint money
 A squalid district
 Cornucopia
 Gastropods related to the land
 snalis
 Thick viscuous liquid
 Orit

- Fruit of a Preposition Comfortable College fraternities Double-dealing

- Temporary cessation of a storm
 A fillet

VERTICAL

- Chum
 Swarm of bees
 Swarm of the compass
 Point of the compass
 Roll of cloth
 Indian
 Note of the scale
 Coquette
 Rough in manure of speech
 Ho give voice
 Sound indicating aches and pains
 Portion of medicine
 Small sausage-shaped hound
- Small sausage-shaped hound

- -Small sausage-shaped hound
 -Affectations
 -Hymn from the Old Testament
 -Isinglass
 -A considerable number
 -Rackets
 -Feathered songster
 -Small loaf
 -Canvas shelter
 -Canvas shelter
 -Cat of meat—especially lamb (pl.)
 -Disable

- Prong
 Journey
 Dispenses tea
 Children's pet horse
 Coagulates
 A poker game
 Front fold of a coat

- 42—To pitch
 43—Thin coating
 45—To embark on a cruise
 46—Seed covering
 48—Long fish
 49—Preposition
 51—Cubic (abbr.)
 52—Board of Ordnance (abbr.)

4NT

- ----------------

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst -----------

Pass

Pass Pass

It is a strange paradox that a player who underbids in the early rounds is often forced to overbid later on and be set when he reaches too high a contract. During the last few years there has spring up a peculiar type of Bridge player, which I designate the bridder. This type of proper considers to the property of th

Jacks. A Minimum Bidder

A Hallman bidder

A "minimum bidder" found himself
i trouble when the following hand
ras played;
East, Dealer
North-South vulnerable

*

A K J 4 2 A K 7 A K 5

Comment
South should have opened with a forcing two-bid. His hand was so strong that except with very bad fortune and an heart support in North's hand a game should be made. Over the two-beart bid two spades and South's rebid would have been three hearts. North would have been three hearts. North would have been three hearts. North would have bid three notrump and South should have let the bidding die there without the slightest qualim.

The bidding: North

Pass

Pass

1 h 3 NT Pass After North had made his bid of three notrump, it suddenly occurred to South that while he had shown a strong had he had by no means revealed his actual holding of more than six homestricks. He have not the second had been contrump, so he reised to four notrump, it so happened that South was not using this bid as a conventional Slam try, so it was not a forcing bid, and South was enabled to pass. But the damage had been done. Because the hearts were not divided 3—3 and the finesse for the Queen was not successful, the four-notrump contract was defeated. Pass

Comment

(Copyright by The Warsaw Weekly in Poland and by The North American Newspaper Alliance elsewhere)

NEW GIANT ZEPPELIN

(Continued from page 5 col. 2)

Knut Eckener showed me over Knut Eckener showed me over the new Zeppelin, pointing out many new features. 240 metres long, 42 metres in diameter at the thickest part, it was so colossal that the 100 odd workmen were lost in the maze of spars and tremendous ring girders. The four motor gondolas are as big as an aeroplane fuselage. Not one is yet attached to the Zeppelin. A portion of the 28,000 square metres of fabric covering was in place. was in place.

The stern of the new Zeppelinwhich in the case of the Akron and Macon proved the weakest part— is strengthened by three extraordinarily strong cruciform sup-ports, supporting the frame vertically and horizontally, spaced just over one bay distant from the other.

(Copyright by The Warsaw Weekly for Poland and N. A. N. A. elsewhere)

KENYA MURDER MYSTERY

A White Paper issued by the Government of Kenya this month contains one of the strangest crime stories in the history of the Colony. It sets forth the story of Theodore Powys, a young English farm manager, who in October 1931 set out in search of grazing for the flocks of sheep belonging to his employer, Lady E. Cole, but never returned.

Several days later, his body

E. Cole, but never returned.

Several days later, his body was found some miles away, and it was presumed that the pony he was riding (which returned to the farm), had shied at a lion, throwing him and that he had been set upon by the lion. The police enquiry supported this theory, and the magistrate in the district decided that no inquest was necessary. Three months later however, a native suggested to the police that Mr. Powys had been the victim of a ritual had been the victim of a ritual murder carried out by warriors of a native tribe, called the Sam-

of a native tribe, called the Samburn.

The case was re-opened, but several of the native's statements were proved to be untrue. An inquest verdict of "death by misadventure" was recorded, once more upholding the lion theory.

Nearly two years later, the murder rumour arose again. A fresh investigation was made. It was then found that the native who came to the police in the first instance had disappeared, and it was reported later that he had been murdered.

The White Paper sets forth that after these investigations had been completed, five Samburu natives were tried and acquitted on the charge of murdering Powys. On the day after the verdict was given, three settlers, one of whom was the Earl of Errol, interviewed the Governor, and brought serious charges against the Administration, alleging that Government officers had tried to hush the case up.

The allegations were denied by the Government and the Attorney.

The allegations were denied by The allegations were defined by the Government and the Attorney-General rejected the suggestion.

After perusing the documents the Secretary of State has declined to order a new inquiry.

The crime, if crime it was, may require a mystery for eye.

remain a mystery for ever.

- Percy Cowen.

Advertisements Classified

To let apartment 6 rooms in beautifully situated villa; all modern conveniences; separate central heating; garage; trams 1, 12, 19; tel. 913-16; Malczewskiego 22, Mokotów.

Cinema Programme

First-Run Houses

Address and Performances	Films Currently Showing	Comment
Atlantic Chmielua 33 Perf. 6, 8, 10.	Murder in the Private Car Charlie Ruggles, Una Merkel American Production. Second Week	Thriller
Apollo Marszałkowska 106 Perf. 4. 6. 8. 10.	Lives of a Bengal Lancer Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone Paramount Picture Twelfth Week	From the book by Francis Yeats-Brown Good
Capitol Marszałkowska 125 Perf. 4. 6. 8. 10.	He Loves Me Not Bing Crosby, Miriam Hopkins American Production Second Week	Comedy Good
Casino Nowy Świat 50 Perf. 4.6.8.10.	Unfinished Symphony Hans Jaray, Marta Eggerth Austrian Production Twelfth Week	Musical Good
Europa Nowy Świat 63 Perf. 6. 8. 10.	Hide-Out Maureen O'Sullivan, Robert Montgomery American Production Second Week
Filharmonja Jasna 5 Perf. 6. 8. 10.	Stand up and Cheer Shirley Temple, John Boles American Production First Week
Majestic Nowy Świat 43 Perf. 6. 8. 10.	Pve Got Your Number Joan Blondell, Pat O'Brien Glenda Farrell Third Week	Comedy
Pan Nowy Świat 40 Perf. 4. 6. 8. 10.	Change of Heart Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell American Production Second Week	Sentimental
Rialto Jasna 3 Perf. 6, 8, 10,	Kiss and Make up Cary Grant, Helen Mack Edward Everett Horton American Production First Week	Comedy
Stylowy Marszałkowska 112 Perf. 4. 6. 8. 10.	JULIKA Gitta Alpar, Gustaw Fröhlich, Austrian Production First Week	Musical Humorous
Światowid Marszałkowska 111 Perf. 4, 6, 8, 10.	lch will Nicht Wissen Wer Du Bist Liana Haid, Gustaw Fröblich Szöke Szakall Austrian Production First Week	Musical Comedy Good

HINTS ON ENGLISH

We continue our list of words related through sound. It is not recommended that this list be memorized, but athorough knowl-edge of it will be helpful.

current—a stream currant—a dried grape dairy-place for keeping milk diary-a daily record depreciate — grow less in value deprecate—to pray against desert—to forsake; a sandy waste dessert — fruit or sweets after dinner disease—illness decease—death dying-ceasing life dyeing-colouring effect-result affect-influence elicit-to draw out illicit-illegal

Answer to last week's puzzle eligible—suitable illegible—unreadable elusive—difficult to capture illusive—deceptive emigrate—to go out of a country immigrate—to come into a country except—omitting accept—to take fare—money for travel fair—beautiful; gathering for amusements find-discover fined-penalized fir-kind of tree fur-hair of certain animals flower-blossom flour-ground wheat or cereal

Below is the English transla-tion of last week's Polish passage:

on or last week's Polish passage.
Our course still lay to the northon the very same day we passed the Lake of St. Clair hardly a score of miles in length and at dusk we were on the waters of the St. Clair river.
A line of villas stretching along the let bank looked quite original; they are built on pilot and such has a title boats which at that moment were scudding past.

Balow in the state of the property of the pro-

Below is this week's Polish passage for translation:

Pomimo, že jest juž po 11-ej, motor zostaje gruntownie przejrzany, naoliwiony. benzyna załadowana. Podczas gdy mechanicy wykonywują te wszystke roboty, przysiada się do nas na brzeku mola, gdzie odpeczywany, kilku smagłych, oberwanych chopcow. Bierzemy ich za filisaków, tak dobrze są im zana rzeka i jej brzegi.

Advertising Rates: 50 groszy per milimeter. Term rates on application. Classified advertising — 20 groszy per word.

The Warsaw Weekly is published every Friday by the Polsko-Amerykańska Spółka Akcyjna "SOUTHERN TRADE" Warszawa, Mokotowska 12.

Redaktor Odpowiedzialny — WŁADYSŁAW SKORACZEWSKI Managing-Editor - WINSTON CRAM